Guest Speakers

President Vancko visited the Senate during the meeting to greet Senators and discuss issues on campus. She spoke about her littering awareness campaign and reported finding money while picking up garbage on and off campus. Recently she wrote an article in the Campus Voice newspaper about picking up garbage. She also stated the campus looks good but cigarette butts are getting pretty bad; part of the problem is because of where the benches were placed. The benches and “butt stop” containers have been moved. President Vancko and her team are looking to students for ideas and suggestions to help prevent this problem from continuing further. One solution that has already been brought up is expanding smoke free areas.

Escoffier Club suggested making designated smoking zones.

President Vancko countered by saying this idea has been thought about but there are many questions this solution leaves to answer. For example, where would they go and how many would we need?

Parks and Recreation Club mentioned maybe distributing fines to people who are seen throwing their cigarette butts or littering.

President Vancko countered by questioning who would enforce these new rules?

John Huber mentioned, on November 10\textsuperscript{th} there will be an open forum to discuss this issue at 1:30 pm in the theater.

NSNA announced the idea of having the carpentry students making something a little nicer for the cigarette butts to liven up campus.

Computer Club brought up the issue of the lack of computers on campus.

President Vancko answered by stating the computers were moved from Sanford Hall to the library because the library is a nicer environment, and the move would save energy and staff hours to have all the computers centralized in one location. The Library is open at night anyway so the computers were placed there for convenience. There was some discussion on total number of computers. President Vancko also said she knows the number of computers has declined since last semester and she is working on getting them all back and available to students. There was an error in the ordering of the tables for computers so this is why there has been a shortage of computers. By the end of this week there will be temporary tables so there will be more computers. Soon, there are also going to be quick print machines in the library so if a student only needs to print something quick before class students can use those computers. There have also been some issues with students gaming in the library. If you see this please tell a library attendant. Please keep it to studying and appropriate web pages in the library.

There are also 4 computers in the learning center with CAD. There has been brief discussion on wireless printing in the library as well. President Vancko would like it known that she is disappointed about the amount of computers that have been available to students.

CAC suggested that computers should be in places that are convenient for students, and Sanford Hall is convenient for computers because there are classes there.

President Vancko stated computers cannot go in Sanford Hall because the building will be renovated soon. Also, the problem is not the computers the problem is finding the people who support the computers. For example, staffing, fixing computers and printers, and restocking the machines.

LASO asked if the renovations are posted anywhere.

President Vancko stated an architect has been assigned but nothing has been finalized yet. The changes are going to include retiling, some lounges, new entrance, and making it handicap accessible.

CSA asked for a schedule for computer lab in the library so students know when it is available

President Vancko answered by stating there isn’t supposed to be a class in the computer lab regularly but we will work on getting a schedule posted

Computer Club expressed the concern about where the computer students will do most of their studying and spend most of the time when Sanford Hall is being renovated.

President Vancko admitted the move will be a headache but it will be done.

AIAS asked if it would be possible for a bigger lab for architecture students because the construction students are using many of those computers. AIAS also asked if maybe more computers would solve the problem.

President Vancko said they are working with the construction majors to get them a lab to relieve pressure on the computers.

NAHB asked about a rumor of a possible new lab in Smith Hall.

President Vancko states there has been discussion on this but no decision has been made.
NAHB asked if there could possibly be one computer in Smith Hall just for easy printing.

Escoffier Club stated the agora looks great, but the walkway by Gerry gets large puddles of water when it rains.

President Vancko stated they are working on replacing those areas. There is an “every year plan” for redoing these areas and it is being worked on.

Campus Voice brought up campus food and information regarding the price of meal plans.

President Jeff Abraham mentioned to please come to the food service committee with any food related concerns.

The Senate Executive Board expressed their thanks to President Vancko for her on-going concern and involvement in student issues.
